exhilarating romantic comedies, and from documentaries and musicals to installation art. This book traces the director’s career at the crossroads between experimental and mainstream cinema, contextualising her work within the American avant-garde of the 1970s, European anti-naturalism, feminism and the post-modern aesthetics. While offering an in-depth analysis of her multi-faceted film style, it also stresses the social and ethical dimension of her work, especially as regards her representation of marginal groups and her exploration of erotic and diagnostic identities. Particular attention is given to the inscription of the Holocaust and of Jewish memory in her films.

Carrie Mae Weems-Sarah Lewis 2021-05 Essays and interviews explore the work of Carrie Mae Weems and its place in the history of photography. African American art, and contemporary art. In this October Files volume, Essays and interviews explore the work of the influential American artist Carrie Mae Weems—her invention and originality, the formal dimensions of her practice, and her importance to the history of photography and contemporary art. Since the 1980s, Weems (b. 1953) has challenged the status of the black female body within the complex social fabric of American society. Her photographic work, film, and performance investigate spaces that range from the American kitchen table to the sixteenth-century world of historically black Hampton University in the ancient landscapes of Rome. These texts consider the underpinnings of photographic history in Weems’s work, focusing on such early works as The Kitchen Table Series, Weems’s engagement with photographic archives, historical spaces, and the conceptual legacy of art history; and the relationship between her work and its institutional venues. The book makes clear not only the importance of Weems’s work but also the necessity for an expanded set of concerns in contemporary art—one in which race does not restrict a discussion of aesthetics, as it has in the past, robbing black artists of a full consideration of their work. Contributors Dawnell Boy, Jennifer Blessing, Kimberly Juanita Brown, Huey Copeland, Erika Degarme, Kimberly Drew, Cori Fuso, Thelma Golden, Women’s Cinema-Alix Butler 2019-07-25 Women’s Cinema provides an introduction to critical debates around women’s filmmaking and relates those debates to a variety of cinematic practices. Taking her cue from the groundbreaking theories of Claire Johnston, Alix Butler argues that women’s cinema is a minor cinema that exists inside other cinemas, inflecting and contesting the codes and systems of the major cinematic traditions from within. Using canonical directors and less established names, ranging from Chantal Akerman to Nqobile Tlatli, as examples, Butler argues that women’s cinema is unified in spite of its diversity by the ways in which it reworks cinematic conventions.

cinema studies as well as German cinema have once again begun to flourish. Offers a careful combination of theoretical rigor, conceptual accessibility, and intellectual inclusiveness. Includes essays by well-known writers as well as up-and-coming scholars who take innovative critical approaches to both time-honored and emergent areas in the field, especially regarding race, gender, sexuality, and (transnational) identities for its contemporary relevance, reorienting the field to the global twenty-first century. Fills critical gaps in the scholarship, opening the field onto new terms of critical engagement

Other Cinemas-Sue Clayton 2017-06-30 The 1970s was an enormously creative period for experimental film. It innovations and debates have had far-reaching and lasting influence with a resurgence of interest in the decade revealed by new gallery events, film screenings and social networks that recognize its achievements.
Professor Laura Mulvey, and Art director Sue Clayton, bring together journalists and scholars at the cutting edge of research into 1970s radical cinema for this collection. Chapters are at once historically grounded yet fused with the current analysis of today’s generation of cine-philes, to rediscover a unique moment for extraordinary film production. Other Cinemas establishes the factors that helped to shape alternative film: world cinema and internationalism, the politics of cultural policy and arts funding, new accessible technologies, avant-garde theories, and the development of a dynamic and interactive relationship between film and its audiences.
Exploring and celebrating the work of The Other Cinema, the London Film-makers’ Co-op and other conversations of today’s film culture, as well as the impact of creative such as William Raban and Stephen Dwoskin —and Mulvey and Clayton themselves —this important book takes account of a wave of socially aware film practice without which today’s activists, queer, minority and feminist voices would have struggled to gather such volume.

Women Labor Activists in the Movies-Jennifer L. Bordi 2010-11-04 Some of the most indelible images of women in recent American film have been of working women fighting for labor reform or to expose corporate corruption. This critical text explores films with female labor activists as main protagonists, illuminating issues of gender and class while depicting the challenges of working class women. Films covered include Salt of the Earth, Pajama Game, Union Maids, With Babies and Banners, Norma Rae, Silkwood, and Live Nude Girls Unite! Through comparative analysis, the text examines the responses of these films to the labor and feminist movements of the last half century, and how American cinema has articulated notions of disempowerment, ambivalence and, at times, the resistance of both women and the working class at large.
